As an artist, I got a chance to see this first hand. This web-site is very nicely done, but I often wish that the content was presented in a much richer text format. I often have to zoom in and out to read some things and the fonts are not particularly attractive. Anyways, I'm sure it's not a popular opinion, but I like the original, more austere-looking concept that Tyler proposed. I mean, there was no need to change anything with Alex's sprites. The "endorsed by" thing was added by you, after the game was released. I do wish we could've had a v1.0 that everybody could use right away (no need for the upgrade to v1.1 or whatever). New Rank System: * No more rank distributions. (Well, except the big separate gacha pool). Each individual can have his own rank, and from now on, the first-place rank is won by the player who gets the most points. * Highest point is 50000. * Note that the previous points system was a little off. (You usually ranked "2-3", "4-5" etc...) * Improved ranking algorithm. * This means that you will only be able to rank up to max. 50000. (Only when the rank already consists of 50000+ points) * Take note that ranking up is only possible if you unlock the rank you are trying to gain. For instance, if you unlock the 10k rank from the 4k rank, you will be able to rank up your points to that rank. (For an exception, check the rank unlock record). * Improved of the ranking display. (New font, and fancy-looking rank symbols). * Ranking display is only visible to the player who is active/doesn't have a rank. (Hence, you won't be able to see it for someone else. This is probably the reason why it was removed in the first place.) * As mentioned before, you won't be able to see if a player has your rank unless they ARE your rank. (1-20 rank symbols are displayed, but the rest are just colored as their rank symbols) * User chooses his own rank, now. * Rank points for every level is visible to the players who have that rank. * Asking for your rank to be checked is Monday, April 25, 2010 Spooky, Fun, and Smart! A lot of what has made my day has been silly. I started my day by opening a "slightly" jam-packed mail box and found an unknown, from/to "Harry". Fun. After eating breakfast, I headed to my mom's and then to Wal-mart and had my first trip. I was immediately "hit" by a tornado and actually got out of the store. I thought about laying low and having fun but I was surrounded by "school" mothers. Mom and I then headed to school to try out my new earbuds. It sounds like a lot but they are awesome. After that, we went to dance for our 5th hour because the 6th hour is Algebra and I totally spaced it last week. It's amazing what you miss. After dance, we went to lunch and then to the library to read. (I can't believe I said "read." I learned a different kind of Language in my adult life) After that, we rode the buses home. Mom and I went to the church first and then to the library because we needed a card for the library. After a quick visit with my grandma, we headed to the pool for swim lessons. Thankfully, this swimming teacher is really good and I had a good time. After swim lessons, we went to Summer school and then to the church where we met my "teacher". He is a senior pastor and he asked me what classes I was in. He is also really good, also. It was fun. After the evening worship, we went home to finish our homework and mom headed home. I had a date with the zombies at school tomorrow and I can't wait. Silly? Maybe, but I like it. Fun? Hell yes! Smart? Hmmm... Yeah. #17 About Me Thanks for clicking over!
