Photoshop CS6 contains an application called Camera Raw. It provides image-editing functions for raw image files, such as images captured by digital cameras. (See the section, "Capturing Images with the Camera Raw plug-in," in Chapter 5 for details.) More information about raw files, the plug-in, and other raw image-editing features is available in Chapter 4. Here are some of the many things you can do with Photoshop: • Take digital photos or convert images into a format that can be imported into Photoshop. • Create and modify images that can be saved, resized, and sent to the web. • Enhance images with special effects, such as simulated light shows, to make them more desirable for email messages, online printing, and other tasks. • Create or modify images that can be optimized for use on the web. • Edit photos that you've imported from a camera-mounted computer. • Trim, copy, or rotate images. • Blend together multiple images to form a composite. • Create and modify advanced 3-D models. • Create illustrations for a variety of different purposes and projects. • Retouch or enhance photographs or line art. • Transform and distort objects and people in images. The best way to get the most out of Photoshop is to spend a great deal of time learning how to manipulate images. Sketching with Adobe Photoshop Sketching is really like sculpting. Sketching is a creative way to develop ideas for a variety of purposes, including submitting artwork for a challenge, creating marketing materials, or providing the foundation for a design. In the example shown in Figure 2-1, I created a simple drawing of a pooch, using a pencil with a blender brush. I created a new layer and started to work on it, adding shading, highlights, and contrast. **Figure 2-1:** Use Photoshop to develop ideas quickly. Photoshop provides the means for you to create your own sketches or, by using a sketching feature included in Photoshop, you can import data from other apps, such as Sketchbook Pro or Microsoft Visio. Creating a sketch Before you can create your own sketches with Photoshop, you first need to create a new document. (A document is similar to a page in a word-processing file.) To start creating a new document, choose File◆

Labels Sunday, 19 February 2017 After a wonderful yet tiring week I had to go back to the Netherlands on Friday to pick up my aunty, cousin and niece and family. They had spent five wonderful days in Sweden and now that we are back we had planned a fireworks at night, all of us together on the terrace of the house and the sky was breathtaking. I had my camera with me and took some pictures of the fireworks in the sky. Five families all together on a terrace in the middle of Stockholm is nothing short of magical and the city is breathtaking in the clear light of the day. All of us went out for a stroll during the day and bought food and drinks for dinner. The family has been living together now for at least five years and everyone is so lovely. The kids are 20, 17, 10 and 8 years old and they are a delight, always happy and always smiling. It was a lovely end of a lovely week and it's just so nice to be together. Monday, 16 February 2017 What is it about roses, I just love them. This is my fourth rose painting that I am sharing today and all of them are so beautiful but this one is a little different as it was given to me by a friend of a friend. I think it's always nice to have friends and I can't think of a nicer gift than this rose painting. Friday, 13 February 2017 I have been reading quite a bit about early career professionals with blogs and of course magazines and books. I realised that I work a little too fast and that I can't see the forest through the trees so I decided to make a list of the things I would love to do after having a baby. The list is a little vague as I love to travel and always would love to take some trips (to Iceland, Scotland and the third smallest country in the world and if I could afford it I would also like to do a trip to Japan but I have to say in all seriousness, I am only thinking about buying a return ticket right now). My list is very long and I have probably learned something over the years but it's something about travelling and working in the fields of photography and painting. There are so many things I would love to do and learn but for now, I can only dream about

"The privacy and security of personal data is of the utmost importance and the HealthCare.gov team, including [the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services] and our leading privacy and security experts, are continuing to evaluate and secure the site," the Department of Health and Human Services said in a statement. "We are confident that our site is among the most secure consumer-facing online platforms in the country." According to a letter obtained by ProPublica that first broke the story, the department recommended fixing the data-handling problems before implementing the rest of the healthcare law, despite the project's initial August launch. The website has since been inundated with misinformation about the law as its implementation continues. Federal officials said the changes would address the collection and storage of the information by a third-party contractor, Data Trust, as well as security and privacy issues in the data and the transfer of the data to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. A letter to the National Council for Accreditation of Technology Standards dated Oct. 9 instructed Data Trust to "implement the changes to the system before any additional information is collected." Department officials said the changes are not related to the recent incident in which attackers gained access to sensitive information
